Primary caregivers need a break and respite care provides a temporary rest from caregiving, while the person with Alzheimer's continues to receive care in a safe environment. Using respite services can support and strengthen your ability to be a caregiver.

There are several types of respite care: in home care services; adult day care and residential facilities.

Alzheimer's Association offers a weekly e-newsletter to learn about caregiving tips, where to find support and the care options available to meet the changing needs of the person with Alzheimer's.
