AlzAuthors is a volunteer-run, not-for-profit organization that works with authors to connect caregivers with the best books and blogs about Alzheimer's disease, dementia, and topics related to caregiving. We post a new author each week on our site and post daily about resources on social media. We receive requests for inclusion from writers worldwide. The website includes more than 200 authors. There is no cost to you to be a featured author on our site.

We offer a comprehensive collection of books and blogs on Alzheimer's Disease and dementia. Discover hundreds of inspirational stories which span all Alzheimer's and dementia stages to offer you insight and understanding. Whether you are a caregiver, family member, or living with dementia, you will find the help you need from decades of caregiving within memoirs, caregiver guides, novels, children's books, and blogs; plus the encouraging real-life experiences behind these works. If you are looking for a specific resource, start on our Find a Resource page where you can search for posts based on types of books or blogs.
